the Kansas Pacific Through to Den

From the St. Louis Republican.] The Kansas Pacific railroad is at last com pleted to Denver. The last rail was laid on Monday. A despatch from Mr. Giles F. Filley to John D. Perry, President of the road, dated Monday, stated that seven miles of track was laid on the morning of that day, and the last remaining distance of three and a quarter miles would be laid that afterand a quarter miles would be laid that after-noon. The gap was filled up according to programme, and on that day there was a fin-ished railroad all the way from St. Louis to Denver, the capital of Colorado. This gives us another route to the Pacific ocean from St. Louis, since there is already a branch road leading from Denver to the Union Pa-cific. Trade and travel will not need, now, to go to Omaha to reach California; it will go directly through Denver and take the nion Pacific far out on the plains. But it is the connection with Colorado that s the chief benefit of this event. Colorado is steadily expanding from a crude mining district, into a sturdy State of large popula-tion and diversified industries. It is only a few weeks ago that Colorado shipped a lot of wheat grown on its own soil to St. Louis to be sold on 'Change, and the time is not far distant when it will contribute other products of its soil and labor to the trade of our city. It will be the duty of St. Louis merits to buy all that Colorado shall have to sell and to sell all that Colorado shall need to buy, and we hope they already perceive the necessity of establishing relations with the new region that may result in lasting mutual advantages. But Denver is not to be the end of the Kansas Pacific road, and no contemplation of that city as a terminus of it should be permitted. Beyond Denver lies New Mexico, whose gold and silver deposits -some of them the long lost mines once worked by the followers of Cortez-are just son are looking forward to the building of now being brought to light; and beyond New of San Diego, patiently waiting for a simila onnection with St. Louis to that which Sar Francisco now enjoys with Chicago. The energy that laid ten and a quarter miles of track on the Kansas Pacific, last Monday will never rest satisfied till the whole distance fortunate pretender, dragged dripping and dishonored from the waves through which he was trying to escape, was once more arreste Having now made himself ridiculous, was essential in his next attempt upon the crown he should blotout the recollection o deserved to rank with the Saints. Bonaparte became the Emperor Napoleon III. Upon this foundation of crime he built up the worst system of despotism which modern Europe has yet had to en-dure. He crushed the French nation with an international nuisance, the enemy every good government in Europe, For some inscrutable reason—perhaps as a punishment for sin—Heaven has permitted him for nearly twenty years to keep the world in a turmoil. At last the end seems near, and the huge fabric of fraud is breaking up.

WHAT A CORRESPONDENT SAYS OF

NEW YORK, August 18-Mr. Gaillaus telegraphs to his Present paper here: "Paris, last night, was the Paris of the previous night, only with more scale ation among the people, but with hardly less feeling, while the government organ insides on the most guarded silence in regard to movements of the army, which are just now purely strategic. The Minister of War announces ideration of the interests of the county in the that these movements under Bazaine have been completely successful, and, if so, continue the defeat of the Prussians in their combined efforts to cut off the retreat of the French army. This gave the greatest assurance to the Parisian people. Gigantic preparations continue in France. Men appear everywhere, as defenders of the soil, full of confidence and with all the hopefulness of youth. They leave Paris every few hours to join the army at Chalons or else-where. The proclamation of Gen. McMahon, loved by French people, has revived a failing confidence in the army, netwithstanding his reverses, but, as they were against such terrible odds, many indeed now feel assured as to the final result of the war."

PARIS, August 18—evening—General Trochu is appointed commander in chief of of all the forces at Paris, and issued a proclamation requesting order and calminess, not only in the streets, but a spirit of resignation under trials consequent on the situation. He appeals to all men and all parties, saying he belongs himself to no party save that of his country, and declares that all good citizens country, and declares that all good efficient must, by moral restraint, keep down those who deem the public misfortunes only an op-portunity to satisfy their own detestable designs.

DETAILS OF A CONFLICT AT PONT-A-MOUSSON Berlin, Angust 18—Details of the conflict at Pont-a-Mousson, have just been received. Marshal Bazaine, endeavoring to fall back from Metz to Verdun, was attacked livisions, and was forced to face about. The Prussians were admirably firm, though the Prussians were admirably firm, though they sustained the attack of four French corps, among them the Imperial Guard. Berlin, August 18—The following official news has been made public in this city, thi morning: Gen. Alvensleben advanced yesterday with the Third corps, towards the east side of Metz, on the line of the evening's refreat towards Verdun. He encountered very severe fighting with the divisions of DeCaen, L'admirault, Froissard, Marshal Canrobert, and the Imperial Guard. General Alvendeben was sustained successfully by the Tenth army corps, and by detachment of the Eighth and Ninth Corps, commande by Prince Frederick Charles. The enemy was driven in upon Metz in spite of his great superiority of force, after a severe combat of twelve hours. The losses on both sides were very heavy, and the Prussian Generals Doengs and Weidle were killed, and General ausch and Gruscher wounded.

"King William, to-day, saluted the troop on the field of battle, which has been glori ously maintained by the Prussian arms. New York, August 18-Foreign telegrams have the following: "Information grams have the following: "Information received from Verdun this morning, report a great battle in progress near Mulatvier, a point about one-third of the way on the road from Metz to Verdun. the French retreat. the French retreat.

"On Sunday the Prussians found the French still in great force under the walls of Metz. Since Sunday no considerable battle is known to have been fought anywhere, but French reports of checks to Prussians west of the Moselle, whether true or false, coincide with Bazaine's retrogade movements. In the absence of Prussian telegrams there is nothing to show what forces, either of Prussian or Exemple remain near Metz, but there sian or French, remain near Meta; but there can be no doubt that Hazaine has with-drawn the main body of the French army restward and that the French army have harrassed his retreat by unremitting attacks on his flanks and rear. There is no evidences, however, that the Prussians have at-tempted tocut off Bazaine's retreat in such ce as to compel him to chose between indoning a direct line to Chalons and
